GENERAL REMARKS.

At the commencement of the year, the department had at their disposal twenty-six hundred feet of hose; the firewards, being of the opinion that this amount was not sufficient, requested the selectmen to purchase five hundred feet additional, making a total of thirty-one hundred feet, out of which six hundred feet have been turned over to the sewer department, leaving twenty-five hundred feet available for use, one hundred feet less than at the beginning of the year.

We would recommend the purchase of one thousand feet of new hose, which with our present supply would put the department on good footing to meet any emergency liable to occur.

The firewards would recommend that a hydrant be placed at some point near the freight depot for the better protection of property in that vicinity, the nearest hydrant at present being the one near the town hall and the one near the residence of Dr. French on Bank street.

Only one hydrant has been put in this year, that being located near the residence of Charles Brooks on Cata-mount street. This hydrant was not called for by the firewards, but was put in for the benefit of the sewer department.

They also recommend that an appropriation be made at the next annual meeting to defray the expense of shingling the engine house, and for necessary repair on the inside of the building.

ALBERT J. RANLET,

Firewards.

SCHOOL REPORT.

The school board respectfully submits the following report to the citizens of the Pittsfield school district:

One of the prime purposes of an annual report from the school board is to give the general public some information in regard to the condition and standing of their several schools, to note any deficiencies which may be apparent, and to make any suggestion for their future control and management that may be required to bring them up to a higher degree of efficiency and value.

It is not the purpose of the board to come to the public with abject words of apology or to crave forgiveness for the errors of the past, but rather with a measure of reasonable pride to point to our schools in the work of the last year, and to say with honest lips at the close of the year: There are your schools. How do you like them?

A prominent educator of our state said at the time when we began the organization of our high school and our graded system that if we had them in good working order within a period of five years we should be very fortunate. Less than that time has already passed and we are pleased to be able to say that the success reached up to date is quite up to the expectation of those who have the schools in charge.

We do not mean to be understood that they cannot be improved, for perfection is never reached in any department of life, but we are of the opinion that a large proportion of our people have abandoned that ancient impression that our old district schools were all that was needed to develop to their fullest capacity the minds and hearts of our children and to fit them for the positions of honor and responsibility found all along the pathway of human life.

Under our former limited system, it was a rare event for any of our young men to contemplate a college course, as the expense and inconvenience of a preparatory course in some distant town or city discouraged those especially of limited means from the attempt. Under the present system, we have sent more boys and girls to college in the past four years than in any previous twenty years, and there are, we hope and expect, many more to follow. In direct ratio as we have improved our schools we have thrown open the hearts of the people, and have not only found the way to their purses, as displayed in a constantly increasing liberality in their appropriations for schools, but have also made them so critical and appreciative in matters relating to intellectual culture that the best of everything is not too good for their children.

This condition of affairs is precisely what we promised the people when they consented to appropriate money for a high school building. We assured them that it would be expensive, but at the same time would be something they would not willingly give up.

If any further evidence is needed in relation to the estimate put upon the value of our present system, we need only to point to the list of our tuition scholars who flock in from other towns to avail themselves of the opportunities for a more complete and extended course of study than they find in the district schools at home.

To emphasize this contrast still more strongly, we must remember that under our former system pupils were kept in school usually from the age of five years to twenty, and rarely studied beyond the common branches, while at present our pupils who graduate at eighteen have fitted or nearly fitted for college.

A gentleman who attended our recent speaking contest said at the close of the exercises that in view of the uniform excellence of the several pieces rendered he needed no further information in regard to the character of our public schools, and we have no doubt that this sentiment would be echoed by substantially our entire population. Having made the foregoing statements in a general way we shall, perhaps, appropriately refer specifically to a few points of special importance.

THE LOWER GRADES.

While so very much interest seems to be directed to the standing and equipment of the high school, the demands of the lower grades are in danger of being to some extent ignored, or at least forgotten. We regard the upper school as a finishing room, from which all good results must finally flow. This is only true in a certain sense. While the character of the work in this room should be of a high order, it must be remembered that many pupils are obliged to leave school before they reach this room, and that all the education such pupils can have must be obtained in the lower rooms. Probably not two thirds of the pupils who enter the primary schools will graduate from the high school. With this fact in view great care should be exercised to the end that such pupils should have the best opportunities possible while they remain in school. The lower rooms are the training schools for those who do not expect to take professional positions, but they should nevertheless be qualified by such training for the performance of the duties of average citizenship. In fine, we should very soon begin to pay a little more attention to those who do not expect to go beyond reading, writing, and ciphering.

FINANCE.

The coming year will see our school debt paid. Only one note of $2,000 remains outstanding, and this will be provided for at our coming annual meeting. So easily and almost imperceptibly has the entire debt been paid that no one has suffered any annoyance or inconvenience, and the district will soon own one of the finest pieces of school property in our section of the state. We would suggest that the district at some time, if possible, purchase a small triangle from the field of Mr. Isaac E. Smith, which would put the schoolhouse lot into regular shape and make a valuable addition to the present playground.

CHANGE OF SCHOOL YEAR.

By a recent change in our public laws, the fiscal year for towns and districts has been changed so as to end on the 15th of February, and in consideration of this change the tabulated report will only consider the spring and fall terms, and the present term will be carried to next year's report. This change will be of benefit to the district, as the early appearance of the treasurer's report will enable the citizens to make their school appropriations more intelligently than before.

TARDINESS AND ABSENTEEISM.

This is nearly a threadbare topic, and yet no problem ever confronted any educator which was so gigantic in size or so difficult of solution.

The only true remedy for the two above-named evils is for every parent and guardian to see to it that every child who is able shall be promptly at school every day. This seems very simple, and yet it is precisely what the parents and guardians will not do. Superintendents have exhorted, teachers have threatened, and all have devoutly wished that this mighty evil might cease, and all to no avail. The registers of all our schools are sadly defaced by those black marks which refer to those absent though not forgotten buds of promise who refuse to expand and blossom into intellectual sweetness; and the saddest feature of the case is the fact that the pupils who are most frequently absent are the poorest scholars in their classes, and the parents are filled with surprise when the time for promotion comes to find that their children are not up to the proper standard, and as a rule assign as the real cause of their failure the inefficiency of their teacher. We can only hope that these evils may grow smaller by degrees, and beautifully less.

DISCIPLINE.

Good discipline has evidently been maintained in the various departments, and this end has been reached in a large majority of cases without resorting to the ancient custom of corporal punishment. It has come to be understood that those children who desire to attend our common schools must agree to be governed by such wholesome restraint as will conserve the general good, and that when they fail to comply with these rules they are fit and ready subjects for suspension until such a time as reason asserts her sway in their hearts, when they can resume their connection with their classes. This method is both humane and effective. This plan does not disturb the physical health of the pupil, nor is he long permitted to disturb the school. This plan does not indicate that the laws have been changed in regard to the control of refractory pupils, but simply proves that in some cases it may be better to allow the child to punish himself by giving up for a time his school privileges.

SCHOOL BUILDINGS.

The board can report that the school buildings throughout the town are in a good state of repair. During the year the brick schoolhouse has been completely repaired and painted, as also the room at the town hall. The Mountain schoolhouse has been painted, and repairs were also made at Jenness Pond, with no special appropriation by the district. It is a matter of the wisest economy to keep all the school property of the town in good repair from year to year, as the needs may be suggested. The high school building has stood the test in the coldest weather known for years, and is up to the standard for comfort and convenience.

CONCLUSION.

In summing up, the board desire to suggest to the citizens the desirability of giving to the officers of the district and the various teachers their earnest and hearty co-operation in the various matters which appertain to our public schools. See to it that your children get the full benefit of the instruction given by being regularly at school. Consult with the teacher frequently in regard to the work of your children in school, and especially in selecting the proper course in the high school. Temper all your criticisms with love and charity. Be liberal in the future as in the past in your annual appropriations, so you will be richly rewarded in the consciousness of duty well done, and receive the benedictions of generations to come.

High School: Latin, 22; General History, 22; Greek, 6; English Literature, 3; French, 10; Geometry, 16.

COURSE OF STUDY.

PRIMARY DEPARTMENT.

FIRST YEAR.

READING — First term: Teach 100 words from the board, using script only. Second term: Transition from script to print; Davis's Beginner's Book, pp. 7-43; Normal Primer, pp. 7-30; Monroe's Chart, first half; continue use of script with print. Third term: Beginner's Book, pp. 44-93; Normal Primer, pp. 30-63; Complete Chart.

SPELLING — Use Phonics; during last term, easy words from chart and reader. Pupils should know names of all the letters by the end of first year.

NUMBER — Combinations of numbers to 10; learn to count and write to 50. Most of the work of the year to be given incidentally with Reading, Language, and Science.

LANGUAGE — Informal talks with a purpose to develop "fluent expression"; subjects to be taken from Nature Study and objects and events of especial interest to children.

SCIENCE — Simple observation work upon plants, minerals, and animals, using only common names. Encourage pupils to make pictures of the objects.

PENMANSHIP — Write reading lessons; each pupil his own name. Use Tracing book No. 1. Write with a lead pencil.

COLOR, FORM STUDY, AND DRAWING — Use Teacher's Manual.

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE — Take proper care of person, as cleanliness, putting on wraps when going out of doors, etc.

CALISTHENICS — Selected exercises from the Swedish System.

SECOND YEAR.

READING — First term : Davis's Beginner's Book, pp. 94-128 ; Normal First, pp. 9-59 ; continue use of script. Second term : New Lippincott's Second Reader, pp. 9-59 ; Normal First, pp. 59-110. Third term : Lippincott's, pp. 60-116 ; Normal Second. Keep the reading easy by using first one book then another.

SPELLING — Lessons from Reading and Language.

NUMBER — Cogswell's Lessons in Number, pp. 1-67 ; combinations from 10 to 20 ; Roman numerals from I to XX. Make class exercises short. Insist upon good attention, rapidity, and accuracy.

LANGUAGE — Continue oral lessons of last year. Answer questions (usually) in complete sentences. Write short stories and copy paragraphs from Reader, observing the use of capitals and termination marks. Make statements about objects studied in Science. This work should be done with care and with as much precision as possible, keeping from the eyes and ears of the pupil, as far as possible, all incorrect forms of speech.

SCIENCE — Extend the observation work of last year. Blend the Science and Language work.

PENMANSHIP — Pupil's name and address. Copy paragraphs and short stories from Reader. Use Tracing book No. 2.

DRAWING AND COLOR — Teacher's Primary Manual. Take special pains with molding and clay modeling. Teach primary and secondary colors

CALISTHENICS — Selected exercises.

THIRD YEAR.

READING — First term : Lippincott's New Second Reader, pp. 116-168 ; Monroe's Second, pp. 1-50. Second term : Lippincott's, pp. 169-202 ; Monroe's, pp. 51-104. Third term : Monroe's completed ; "Seaside and Wayside" No. 2.

SPELLING — Harrington's Graded, pp. 68-140.

NUMBER — Cogswell's Lessons, pp. 68-140 ; Roman numerals to C.

LANGUAGE — Hyde's First Book, Part I.

SCIENCE — Teach some elementary facts in regard to the Geography of Pittsfield and New Hampshire. Develop the idea of distance as the lessons take the pupil to places beyond those that they have visited.

DRAWING — Regular course. Extend the Drawing to the Nature Study.

INTERMEDIATE SCHOOL.

B CLASS.

READING — First term : Lippincott's Third Reader, pp. 1-50 ; second term, pp. 51-103 ; third term, pp. 104-200. Supplementary Reading, "Seaside and Wayside" No. 3.

SPELLING — Harrington's Graded Speller, pp. 21-46.

ARITHMETIC — Colburn's Mental, pp. 1-63, or to correspond with the written work. First term : Addition, subtraction, multiplication, and short division, taking first half of each subject, using numbers above 500 ; Roman numerals from I to D. Second term : Finish addition, etc. ; Roman numerals from D to M. Third term : Roman numerals from M to \overline{M} ; notation and numeration ; long division.

LANGUAGE — Hyde's First Book, Part I, supplemented by use of chart. Use Nature Study for a part of the subjects in language work.

GEOGRAPHY — First term: Beginning with the school-house as a center, teach school-ground, Pittsfield, N. H., representing by use of outline maps and sand-board; teach physical features, as hill, mountain, river, lake, valley, etc. Second term: Eclectic Elementary Geography, pp. 5-17. Third term, pp. 19-24.
